

ARA CO-CREATION: TURNING INVESTMENT INTO IMPACT

Co-creation leverages diverse voices to shape adaptation research programmes that result in action and impact

The ARA is a global coalition committed to action for adaptation research that strengthens resilience in communities vulnerable to climate change. Learn more: secretariat@adaptationresearchalliance.org

Researchers, practitioners, policymakers & community members share insights into current issues, priorities, and gaps that contribute to more robust programme themes & focus.

PROMOTES COLLABORATION

Feedback, validation, and refinement of methods and approaches are shared throughout the research process for a new programme with a higher standard of scientific integrity.

• ENHANCES USE & IMPACT

Recommendations are more likely to be accepted, implemented, and have a positive impact on society because of the trust and collaboration built among actors.

ENSURES ACTIONABLE OUTCOMES

Involving a variety of relevant actors from early design stages through programme end ensures research outcomes are actionable and can be effectively translated into practical solutions, policies, and interventions.

STRENGTHENS CAPACITY

Develops new skills, knowledge, and understanding among actors, enabling them to contribute more effectively to the design and implementation of adaptation solutions.
